

Babak Rahimi is the Director of the Program for the Study of Religion at the Department of Literature, University of California San Diego. His research interests concern the relationship between culture, religion, and technology. The historical and social contexts that inspire his research range from early modern Islamic societies to the Global South. He is the author of Theater-State and Formation of the Early Modern Public Sphere in Iran: Studies on Safavid Muharram Rituals, 1590-1641 C.E. (Brill 2011). Rahimi is also editor of Performing Iran: Culture, Performance, Theatre (Bloomsbury, 2021); editor of Theatre in the Middle East: Between Performance and Politics (Anthem Press, 2020); co-editor (with Peyman Eshaghi) of Muslim Pilgrimage in the Modern World (University of North Carolina Press, 2019); co-editor (with Armando Salvatore and Roberto Tottoli) of The Wiley Blackwell History of Islam (Wiley Blackwell, 2018); and co-editor (with David M. Faris) of Social Media in Iran: Politics and Society after 2009 (SUNY Press, 2015). His articles have appeared in Thesis Eleven: Critical Theory and Historical Sociology, International Political Science Review, International Communication Gazette, International Journal of Middle East Studies, The Middle East Journal, The Communication Review, and Journal of the International Society for Iranian Studies.